I've spent time at the main 4-way stop in the village trying to monitor traffic there, possibly cruising right through with stopping or slowing down. I've made 4 traffic stops but no one has truly warranted a citation. People DO roll it, but I'm not seeing a rampant disregard for safety and no one – even when I've been outside of my vehicle and watching from seclusion – has 'cruised right through.'

True, random burglaries are a rarity. An overwhelming number of these (in the high 90 percentile) are done by someone who has been IN THE HOME previously with a friend or family member. When looking for a suspect the search always begins close to home – the key is finding who the culprit is.
